REAL ESTATE SALES. The unpleasant state of the weather caused a very ated attendance at the Exchange Salesrooms yester-Court, the house and lot, 24.7x97.6, on East Eighth breet, south side, 402.5 feet east of avenue C, subject trees, south side, of $9.100 and a judgment for $730, for 11,000 over the above mortgage and judgment, to John futh—in all $10,830, said property being valued at $15,000. E. A. Lawrence & Co. sold, in foreclosure, by order of the Supreme Court, one three story frame house, with lot 25 by 100 11, on Essi 124th street, north side, 265 feet east of Fourth avenue, subject to a mortgage of $3,210, to George Fiscofeki for $3,500, in all $6,710, hald property being valued at $10,000. William Kennelly sold, by order of the Supreme Dourt, in foreclosure, the house and lot, 24.8 by 100, on Eenth avenue, west side, 24.9 feet north of Fortleth states. In Robert Humes for $5,000, said property being raised at $8,500. A SERIOUS INCENDIARY FIRE.

LOSS BETWEEN $60,000 AND $70,000. wabout half-past eleven o'clock on Friday night a fire was discovered by some passers-by in the timber shed attached to the carriage manufactory of Thomas Callister, at the junction of the Jamaica and Jericho and Hempetend plank roads, at Queens, town of Jamalca. When first seen the fire had evidently been but a few When first seen the fire had evidently been but a few moments kindled, but the strong southeast wind which was blowing at the time soon fanned the flames into a conflagration, which spread with fearful rapidity. In a flew minutes the fire communicated with the flactory, a large building, in which were the blacksmith's, paint and wheelwright shops, and the repository for inished work. This department was filled with new work, and in the factory were a number of wagons left for repairs, but few of which were saved, the building and almost its entire contents being destroyed. From the factory the flames communicated with the dwelling, salioon and bakery of Mr. Charles Schmidt, on the Jamalea turapike, which, together with his barn, were totally destroyed. Three tenement houses adjoining, owned by Mr. Callister, were also destroyed in succession with a tenement owned by Mr. Benjamin Lane, and the horse sheds attached to his hotel. The hotel itself was several times on fire, but was flaved by a number of dround from Jamalea, who were convoyed from that village to the recene of the conflagration in wagons. A dwelling house, owned and occupied by Mr. John Henderson, and a dwelling owned by the Brush estate and occupied by a Mrs. Neal, were next destroyed and here the progress of the fire was finally stayed. The total loss cannot full short of from $500,000 to $70,000. Mr. Callister's loss is at least $2,000 on buildings and stock $8,000, partially insured. Mr. Henderson's loss on house and furniture is $500; that of the Brush estate $3,500, and Mr. Isane's, about $900. Other losses could not be definitely ascertained. The buildings burned composed nearly the cutt're hamlet, and the fire was no doubt the work of an incendiary. moments kindled, but the strong southeast wind which IS DELANEY INSANE?

The doomed William Delancy, now closely confined in the Queens County Jail at North Hempstead, awaiting his execution for the murder of Captain Lawrence, appointed for the 10th of December next, is either foigning insanity or is really becoming deranged, the authorities are yet in doubt which. The watchmen at his cell door report that he does not sieep much more than three hours in each twenty-four, and since friday morning of last week he has swallowed scarcely fany no riment, or, as one of the keepers expressed it, he "has not eaten an ounce of victuals." It is thought that unless his condition, both mental and physical, undergoes a marked change, he will not live to expiate his crime upon the scaffold. He seems to have very peculiar ideas in regard to his passage from the earth to the abode of spirits. He thinks that his soul's journey will be as much one of difficulty as his life on earth has been. In spite of all reason and argument he entertains the belief that after his death his spirit will have to work as hard in the other world as his body has done in this, and is certain that he will be a sailor in heaven, as he has been on earth. Delaney would scarcely be recognized to-day as the man who, only a few days ago, stood up so unflinchingly and received the death sentence. foigning insanity or is really becoming deranged, the
